Dear Sir

On my return from New York this evening I find your letter of inquiry regarding Horace Smith. I do not know how to address a letter to him. He lives in a new street just opening through a field and up a steep hill, near the Falls of Schuylkil. I will try and find out how to direct to him and let you know.

He has any quantity of original documents and letters of men of the revolutionary period, many of which contradict or correct accepted errors of history. Is full of information about the old times. Is grandson of that Smith who must be considered as founder of the Pa. University, ^{2 who resided at the Falls.}

Between you and I, he is a most unreliable fellow, and much addicted to falsehood.

Yours truly John Sartain

An acquaintance
(a gentleman) call at my Gallery this morning & requested me to send you a description of a picture now in my Gallery for sale. It is "The Death of the Tort" by Benno Adam, it is 47 in x 35ⁱⁿ.
It is considered by experts as the finest animal piece in the world. Indeed your friend (whose name I forgot to inquire) says it is magnificent & ought to be in the Corcoran Gallery. He told me to send ~~by~~ express to you a photograph of the original from which you would be able to form some idea of excellence of the original. He

NEW-YORK CO

A "BENNO ADAM."

Exhibited at the Gibbons Art Gallery.

One of the most remarkable animal paintings ever exhibited in this City is now to be seen at the Gibbons Art Gallery, corner of Seventeenth street and Fifth avenue. It is the "Death of the Fox," painted in Munich by Benno Adam. The scene represents Reynard overtaken in a race for life, at the foot of a large tree, the trunk of which has sprouted thick branches near the earth. Almost under the shadow of these dark-green tangled sprouts the fox is brought to a standstill, being headed off by one hound, who has caught his throat with a fierce grasp of his large, thickly toothed jaws, and by another dog who has buried his fangs in one haunch. The third hound, who is belated, is rushing on the scene gasping from eager pursuit, his eyes aflame, his jaws fairly snapping, his attitude that of bounding, when one more spring will bring him to the finish. Every detail of this work is finely portrayed. The fur of the fox, and the points of the dogs are faithfully produced. There is great action in the picture, and it will prove a treat to sportsmen and those interested in coursing especially.

of them being fully equal to the best specimens in the public Museums abroad.
for instance Percy. Triumph of Death, Harington Great hall. Cranachs Tournament.
Schwengauers, St James. foolish Virgin.
Madonna & child, Nativity. Hollars, Chalice.
& Strassburg Cathedral. Leyden's, Virgil.
Prodigal Son, Bethsemane. holy family Rembrandt's Ecce homo. Christ preaching.
Triumph of Mordochai. the Mill. Kobett's
Baptism of Christ. Master of Caduceus, Apollo Nicoletto's Nativity. Marc Antonio's, Quas ego
St Paul at Athens, the Bacchants. Mantegna Bacchanale & Entombment. Baldini's
Prophets. Italian Cards. Dürers, Knight

& death, Adam, & Eve, St Jerome, coat of arms, Melancholia, the fortune, St Hubert.
In fact there is not one among them unworthy of a place in a public collection.
I should be very glad to sell you a large number of these rare prints & have made you a reduction of 20% from my regular prices in order to make it an inducement for you to buy liberally. The prices on the enclosed bill are the nett prices.

This would be a good opportunity to very important works, which would be hard to duplicate.
